

Beating the Labyrinth: The Sustainability of International Co-operation Programmes in Higher Education

By Ad Boeren

Thela Thesis, Netherlands, 2003. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 234 x 163 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. In a world characterized by globalization processes, nations need their own higher education systems more than ever, yet international co-operation is the key to survival in the 21st century. To be effectively cosmopolitan however, both individuals and nations need a strong identity, an understanding that new developments are often both an opportunity and a threat, as well as the intellectual stamina to make sound judgements and well-founded distinctions between opportunities and threats. A sustainable higher education structure is therefore indispensable if a nation is to take advantage of the possibilities the world offers, and if it wants to participate meaningfully in the global concert. Despite the enormous growth - both quantitatively and qualitatively - of higher education in the South, research is still almost a monopoly of the North. Only 1 of scientific research is done outside the traditional industrialized countries in the northern hemisphere. One way to fill that gap is to promote international co-operation between Northern and Southern institutes of higher education aimed at supporting counterparts in the developing nations. Is this method effective? Does it work? Does it lead...

READ ONLINE
[5.85 MB]

Reviews

These kinds of ebook is the greatest pdf accessible. Of course, it can be engage in, continue to an interesting and amazing literature. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

-- Callie Schmeler III

I just began looking over this pdf. It is one of the most amazing pdf i have study. I discovered this book from my dad and i recommended this pdf to understand.

-- Merritt Kilback II