If the expenses of direction and management be taken at 32,000/. we shall have D 32,000 d By comparing this result with that obtained from the Belgian railways, we have a striking example of the effects of a great amount of traffic on the cost of transport. In the case of the Belgian railways, the mileage of the vehicles of transport was only a little more than 17 millions; while on the North-Western Railway this mileage was 60 millions. While the proportion of the mileage of the vehicles of transport was, therefore, greater on the North-Western Railway, in the ratio of 60 to 17, the expenses of direction and management were greater only in the proportion of 32 to 30; and we find, accordingly, that while the share of these expenses chargeable per mile on each vehicle on the Belgian lines was nearly d., the...
