Trafford Publishing, Canada, 2006. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 213 x 140 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Through Our Soldiers Eyes is the third volume of veterans oral histories gathered and written by students from Ronan High School, a rural public school on the Flathead Indian Reservation in northwestern Montana. The collection tells the stories of 30 men and women who served in the military. Their experiences span from the Second World War to the War in Iraq. They share views on the routines of military life, their experiences with other cultures in different parts of the world, and the U.S. military's role in the world. The stories come from every service branch and give unique and detailed glimpses into a soldier's life in war and peacetime over the last six decades. Paula Anderson offers her experience as a woman in the army during the War in Iraq. Charles Bick tells of the European front during World War II. William Birthmark and Silas Perez speak about how their Native American heritage influenced their feelings about service. James Raymond recounts his experiences leading men during Desert Storm. Clifford Wordon recounts his time as a prisoner...
